Bulk Inventory Storage

70% More Storage in the Same Footprint

The Client

When faced with having to move their bulk inventory storage to a much smaller area, Carisam Ltd. had to find a way to condense and properly organize their stored goods.

Due to the nature of their products, which consisted of boxes filled with glass bottles and other miscellany, their original plan was to outfit their new facility with pallet racks.

The shelving was ideal, but they still needed more storage in the space they were allotted, so a high density system was needed.

Storage Solution

A custom MobileTrak® system was built to accommodate the pallet racking the company had already purchased.

Special carriages were designed to hold the weight of the shelves and large aisle ways were provided to make room for transport carts.

The high density system provided 70% more capacity in the same footprint as the previous stationary pallet rack set up. This provided a better way to store their inventory and made it easier to access the items.
